GEORGIAN SOCIETY FOR EAST YORKSHIRE

The Georgian Society for East Yorkshire is for all those interested in the history and culture of the eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries. The society promotes scholarship of subjects relating to the Georgian period and campaigns for the preservation of Georgian architecture in Hull & East Yorkshire. Society members may participate in lectures and visits to historical sites.

History

It was in January 1937 that Rupert Alec-Smith proposed the formation of a special Georgian committee of the East Riding Antiquarian Society 'to deal with making a list of buildings of that period in our Riding, and any other matters deemed necessary with regard to the preservation of Georgian buildings'. This committee was soon transformed into the Georgian Society for East Yorkshire which held its first Executive Committee meeting on Wednesday 2 June 1937. Two days later the Georgian Group of the Society for the Protection of Ancient Buildings held its inaugural meeting in London.

The Society's Objectives:

1. To preserve buildings from destruction or disfigurement, especially those of the Georgian period, of architectural and historic interest in Hull and the East Riding.
2. To safeguard the setting of such buildings and to maintain or enhance the character of areas of architectural interest and scenic beauty.
3. To afford advice to owners and public authorities on the preservation and repair of such buildings and the uses to which they might be adapted, where necessary.
4. To stimulate public appreciation of the architectural and historic heritage of Hull and the East Riding.

Society Visits

From March to October each year the Society runs a programme of visits. The sites are chosen for architectural merit, historical association or literary connection. Some visits are to private houses that are rarely open to the public, others are to newly built houses in the Georgian style. Many trips include guided tours or lectures. Members may choose to travel by coach or make their own private arrangements. Coach pickup points are at Hessle, Hull, Cottingham and Beverley.
